TRAUMAS OF LAW ENFORCEMENT

Each year, Concerns of Police Survivors (C.O.P.S.) provides training to America's law enforcement agencies on how to appropriately respond to officers and family members affected by line-of-duty trauma. At these trainings, instructors will present information regarding appropriate response to line-of-duty death, disability, critical incidents, and police suicide. The training is presented over three days and includes 21-hours of class time. In its 22nd year, the "Traumas of Law Enforcement" has been said to be "the best training I have taken in my entire law enforcement career" by many who have attended.

At the conclusion of this training, the participants will have information about:

1. How an agency's response to tragedy directly affects the level of distress of their officers and surviving family members.
2. How an individual officer's pre-planning may directly affect the public safety officer benefit their family may receive in the event of their line-of-duty death.
3. How an officer can successfully navigate the cumulative stress caused by experiencing critical incidents throughout a law enforcement career and how their agency can assist with this.

All of the participants in this training will be provided information about the available federal public safety officer benefits and their individual state benefits.

C.O.P.S. provides this training free of charge. HOWEVER, PRE-REGISTRATION IS MANDATORY and participants are responsible for their own travel costs. Space is limited and your participation is not guaranteed.

You can register online at www.nationalcops.org, via email, or complete the registration form on the back panel of this flyer and mail or fax it to C.O.P.S. You will receive confirmation of your participation in the training by mail and email. Law enforcement personnel will be given preference.

After your participation is confirmed, make your travel arrangements. Contact the hotel directly via the information provided if you need overnight accommodations. In order to receive the room rate listed, identify yourself as a participant in the C.O.P.S. training and ask for a room from the C.O.P.S. room block.
